To whom it may concern

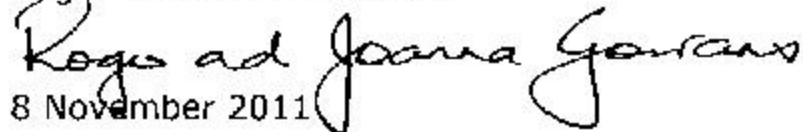

Over the last twelve months we have had the happy experience of having a house designed and built by Paul McDonnell through his building company Paul McDonnell Homes.

We first met Paul two years ago while he was building our daughters house and it very quickly became obvious that he was a high quality builder with an excellent reputation.

Our experience included taking time to select materials, fittings and appliances through a number of suppliers and without exception the suppliers were very complimentary about Paul's performance as a builder and as a person to conduct business with.

He has a very open and obliging approach and a friendly and pleasant disposition. It has been a pleasure working with Paul and we are delighted with the home he has built us.
